You can not only slow down your excitement, but also halt any premature ejaculation from occurring by two methods: 1. Starting and stopping. Try going for as long as possible, and then when early excitement seems to be unbearable, pull out and stop, yet continue the passion in other ways, so you are maintaining a relatively steady level of pleasure for your partner while you "re-gain your composure" and are able to start again.

Obviously, I did not understand the root of my problem. I was not asking the right questions, so I was not getting the answers I needed. I simply knew that I had a problem that was wreaking havoc on my bedroom life, and I was looking for the easy way out.

' The Perfumed Garden, an Arab classical textbook on sex mentions the smoking of hashish as a solution for PE. We do not recommend this, but state it only for informational purposes. If it works for you, you have gained a great deal if it doesn't go and see your doctor. You will be advised, as also the Category 3 man (see below) some new treatments that really work.

Using traditional methods such as the "Squeeze Method", the "Masters and Johnson Method" and the "Stop Start Method" usually takes a few weeks to see results. If we change our approach to having longer sex by focusing on the actual love making muscles rather than just waiting to get used to coming slower, then results can be seen inside a week. In the sporting world, different training methods are used to build the two types of muscle fibres know as "fast twitch" and "slow twitch". Generally weight lifters have denser slow twitch fibres for more power, and sprinters have denser fast twitch fibres for speed. If we apply their training methods to the muscles of sex, then we are able to develop total control much faster.

It does not provide as much direct stimulation to the penis so it is easier to control yourself. Once you start using natural techniques to beat your problem, however, you can thrust away in any position!

These are some of the questions I should have been asking about premature ejaculation. How long can the average man really last in bed? Most experts agree that the average amount of time a typical man can maintain active thrusting before ejaculation is around three or four minutes. That is a lot longer than I used to be able to last, but a far cry from what the adult film industry would have you believe is average.

' Wear a Thick Condom. This will act to desensitize your penis, especially the 'trigger' area under the crown or head. It may be less pleasurable to you, but your partner will not notice the difference, only will notice you are lasting longer.

So what is premature ejaculation, and how long is really enough? Well premature ejaculation, or PE, is commonly defined as the inability to delay ejaculation to a point where both partners are satisfied; and this can be anywhere from 10 seconds to 10 minutes. It all depends on what you and your partner define as "too fast". Research shows that the average man will ejaculate within 1-3 minutes of penetration, while the average woman will orgasm after 12-15 minutes! With such a large gap it is no surprise that more than 30% of guys suffer from the anxiety of premature ejaculation!

You must remember that most doctors and researchers agree that ejaculation is a neuro-physical combined psychological response. There is no argument that modulation of the man's nervous system can delay ejaculation.

' Use an Analgesic Gel. This may also make your (and your partner) feel less sensations (unless you wear a condom and some condoms already come with such gel included). It will buy you some time, and as you get used to more time, you will gain confidence and begin to less nervous and last longer naturally.

Category 2. The Finished in Seconds Man This form of premature ejaculation is very frustrating for both the sufferer and the partner. We recommend seeing a doctor if this is your condition, or a licensed sexual therapist (trained in the Masters and Johnson techniques), but before you do, you might try some of the advice for the guys in Category 1.

Gaining control during sex is as simple as taking control over your breathing, and control over the PC muscle. The PC muscle is located between the scrotum and the anus, and contracts both quickly and slowly during sex. By training it correctly, premature ejaculation can be controlled far quicker than by simply waiting for it to happen with traditional methods.

Then there are trained sexual therapists who somehow take you directly into the sexual experience. This is often a radical solution, but from those men who have undergone direct therapy (this means having sex with the therapist), the results are often astounding.
